ABSTRACT

In one embodiment, a system and a method for cooling a storage device pertain to determining the temperature of the storage device and adjusting computer operation so as to reduce the temperature of the storage device if that temperature is deemed to be too high.

5